Dear Professor Sheldon-Hess,

Thank you so much for your excellent presentation last week regarding tips for running better classes remotely at CCAC.

Faculty who share their expertise contribute not only to the knowledge and skills of our colleagues, but you actually help create a sense of community and build an environment of engagement and support. I also find that these presentations provide me a rare opportunity to see my colleagues in action! I always come away pleased with the exceptional talent that CCAC offers our students.

I further recognize the amount of time such a presentation takes to create. Our work lives are very full, so it is all the more impressive that you have taken the time to share your knowledge and talent with us. I do hope the experience was as valuable for you as it was to those of us who enjoyed the opportunity to experience it.

I offer my most sincere appreciation.

Best wishes,
